A Novel Project

Be a part of a revolutionary literary anomaly.

Write the chapter that will either begin or develop the fabric for the phenomenon known as “A Novel Project.”

A Novel Project is a fictional compilation that will be written by a number of people. Each chapter will be composed from the brainpower of a different writer in order to keep the flow and mood of the project unique, spontaneous, and unpredictable.

The initial idea/chapter will be one that has the ability to expand and evolve. Each chapter can be written in either the first, second or third person, but always staying consistent within each chapter. Be creative, an omniscient narration throughout one chapter may add more levels to the story or a second person may take it to a place no one could have predicted. Be original, and as brilliant as you can, we are looking for a compelling and unusual novel that will look at life from many different angles and perspectives .

Each chapter should be anywhere from 10 to 25 pages in length or 2,500 to 6,000 words, exceptions can and will be made according to the consequential nature of the work submitted. Once we have chosen 4 different chapters by 4 different people, we will post the chapter finalists names on our site along with the winning chapter for writers to build on, and readers ... well to read.

Every 8 weeks we will continue this same process for each succeeding chapter.

Eventually we will have a polished, unpredictable novel with each chapter written by a unique, creative individual en route to publication.

Submit your chapter, visit the site, read potential chapters, place your vote, be a part of A Novel Project.

The Concept

To create and expand on the existing chapter, written by an amateur or professional. The name of the author will be revealed once we have chosen the ensuing chapter. Incorporating amateur, and professional authors alike will continue throughout the project, although not always in the same order, creating a unique tier-free novel.

How will ~~A Novel Project~~ take shape and form?

Writers throughout history have been building on past reflections, theories, stories, and discoveries and continue to do so today. The evolution of human life depends on it. Our growth is a result of our history: socially, culturally, and technologically. Art, especially literature, has helped link us to the past and brought us to the present through the stories of our ancestors and civilizations from one-hundred years ago, and a thousand years ago. A Novel Project can be seen, not only as a work of art but as a condensed template of evolution, adapting and developing in order to continue the work of its' predecessors. We constantly strive to make a connection in whatever way we can so: read and write, search and discover, live and learn.
